

Analyst, Purchasing

Location: Taipei

Full-Time, Day Job

Major Responsibility:

You will be part of a team of internal consultants with high visibility within Dell's executive leadership team. Work is typically organized around project-based engagements and you will be responsible for:

- Collection and synthesis of project analytics and insights
- Cross-functional communication to drive strategies and decision making for executives
- Typical strategy projects may involve but not limited to the following topics
  - Optimize supply chain setup across different product segments and countries
  - Develop sourcing strategies for key market commodities
  - Drive cost optimization in products via management of product complexity
  - Analyze key market trends and recommend change-the-business initiatives

You should be comfortable with a fast-paced dynamic environment, must be able to clearly and concisely communicate recommendations / conclusions with the support of detailed analysis

The position offers:

- Opportunity to work with one of the world's largest IT solutions providers
- Dynamic, challenging, international work environment
- Opportunity to work with a highly motivated team that invests in your development
- Exciting internal career opportunities to different roles

Qualifications:

- Bachelor's Degree
- Major in Business, Engineering, or any other analytically intensive field (preferred but not strictly required)
- Fluent in English and Chinese
- Strong analytical and problem solving skills
- Intermediate/Advanced Excel and PowerPoint skills